

Bio

Carolyn Gartner, LCSW, is currently a hospice social worker with the Visiting Nurse Service of New York. In 2016 she published, Death, Brooklyn and the Gritty Side of Grace, a book about her experience working in hospice. She graduated from the Silberman School of Social Work at Hunter College where her thesis won the Jacob Goldfein Award for Scholarship. In 2000, she was awarded a NYFA (New York Foundation of the Arts) grant for her screenplay Rainstreet. Her undergraduate degree is from NYU Film School where her documentary thesis Cry Pain, Cry Anger won the National Education Media Award. The film weaves together women's stories as survivors of sexual assault.
